Vandals Strike Cemetery

Lucian Estes, who has been caretaker of the East Hill Cemetery for the past nine years and an employe of the association for 11 years, said this morning that this is the first time he can remember vandals striking at the East Hill Cemetery, east of Rushville on State Road 44. Mr. Estes (left) is shown along with John Hughes, president of East Hill Cemetery Association, as they view the monument of Knowles Shaw, a minister of the Christian Church and composer of the song, "Bringing in the Sheaves" which was toppled by vandals Friday night. The other photos show destruction the vandals wrought on tombstones throughout the north side of the cemetery. Mr. Estes said that he was awaken at 2 a.m. this morning by a lot of noise coming from the cemetery and the taking off of a car. The Sheriff's Department is investigating.

Arsenal Of Weapons Stolen From Nat'l Guard Armory

COMPTON, Calif. (UPI) — Thieves who stole an arsenal of weapons and ammunition from a California National Guard armory could have been members of a terrorist group or "just good burglars who knew there was a wide open market for firearms," police said Friday.

"We just don't know who was involved," Compton Police Detective Arthur Camarillo said. "It wasn't a run of the mill burglary. The thieves knew how to get in and they had the right tools."

The weapons cache, which included nearly 100 rifles and seven machine guns, was stolen from the unguarded armory sometime Thursday by thieves who broke down two doors and used a power drill to break into a vault.

A silent alarm was being installed in the armory, but work on it had not been completed.

Police confirmed Friday that all of the firearms were immediately useless to the thieves because the firing pins and bolt mechanisms had been removed and stored in another armory in San Luis Obispo, Calif.

All of the rifles were M16s, the standard weapon of American troops in Vietnam, which has a civilian counterpart, the AR-15, used by sportsmen.

Federal firearms officials said the AR-15 bolt assembly could be fitted without modification in an M16, although it would not be capable of fully automatic fire.

"However," an official added, "if someone has access to a machine shop or used a file carefully, he could easily convert an AR-15 action bolt to permit automatic fire."

Also stolen from the armory were eight grenade launchers, one .45-caliber automatic pistol, 3,360 rounds of .50 bullets, 1,000 rounds of 7.62 bullets, 156 smoke and gas grenades and 75 gas masks.

The FBI also entered the investigation because the thef involved government property.

"There are no suspects and no indication of any group or any organization responsible for the disappearance of the weapons and ammunition," an FBI spokesman said.

Camarillo said he thought it more likely that the thieves were professionals who planned to sell the weapons on the black market.

The detective did not discount, however, the possibility that a terrorist group such as the Symbionese Liberation Army, whose last hideouts were known to be in Los Angeles, could be involved.

Police Chief Miller Warns Of Arrests Near Post Office

Rushville's Chief of Police Robert Miller informed this office that many violations were taking place near the local post office in regard to the construction of that building.

The local police chief stated that arrests would be made to those violating the One-Way and No Parking signs that are posted in the 300 block of North Harrison Street and in particular at Third and Harrison Streets.

Those arrested and found guilty in City Court would be facing a $1 and costs fine totaling $29 for the One-Way violation.

Several signs have been put up and the local police force has issued warnings, but will now begin to arrest violators.

Chief Miller also stated that in the 200 block of West Fourth Street, between Morgan and Harrison Streets, that Do Not Enter signs have been posted on the north side of the railroad and this also is being violated by many motorists.

South of the railroad in this area it is one way East, and north of the railroad it is one way West, the latter being where the post office drop boxes are located.

Miller also reminds individuals that the sale of hand guns on an individual basis is against the law and any transaction must be made through a licensed firearms dealer.

Rifles and shot-guns do not fall into this category.

Kissinger Briefs Officials At Vatican, West Germany

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today briefed West German leaders on the Moscow summit after a session at the Vatican to hear Pope Paul VI's views on the status of Jerusalem.

"I have come here to consult," Kissinger told West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, who welcomed him at the U.S. Air Force base near Fuerstenfeldbrueck, outside Munich.

Genscher and Kissinger drove to a country inn for lunch before proceeding to Munich's Olympic stadium to watch Brazil and Poland play for third place in the world soccer championships.

Kissinger told reporters in Rome that his visits to Brussels, Paris and the Italian capital had helped overcome European suspicion that the United States had gone behind its allies' back in the Moscow summit talks.

"I think European-American relations are now going along in a very constructive direction and a direction we hoped for on a step by step basis," Kissinger said at the airport.

Kissinger said his talks with Italian leaders had been "extremely friendly."

"I think there was complete unanimity of views on all subjects," Kissinger said.

The Italians said afterward Kissinger's visit satisfactorily had met their concern over a previous lack of consultation between the United States and Europe.

At the Vatican, Kissinger explained the general outlook for peace in the Middle East and briefed the pontiff on the European security conference and the Moscow summit.

Vatican spokesman Federico Alessandrini said the Pope gave his views on the Middle East, including Jerusalem. The Pope has said the Vatican should have a voice in any final settlement of the status of Jerusalem and its holy places.

The Pope also told Kissinger of his "particular appreciation for the American initiative" for peace in the Middle East and for Kissinger's "personal service to peace," Alessandrini said.

Driver Escapes Injury In Crash

The Rush County Sheriff's Department reports investigation of a one vehicle accident, in which the driver escaped serious injury, and the arrest of a soldier AWOL.

A one-vehicle accident was investigated at 10:50 p.m. Friday two miles east of Rushville on State Road 44, when Carla M. Evans, 16, 1306 North Cherry Street, lost control of her car and went through a fence on the Richard Busald farm.

The report states that Miss Evans was enroute west on highway 44 and lost control of her car when she attempted to pass another auto failing to see a third vehicle.

Miss Evans stated that she then swerved to the left and lost control of her car running through a fence and overturning through another fence and gate, landing the car on its top.

Miss Evans was treated at Rush Memorial Hospital for minor cuts and bruises. She required some stiches in her hand.

Damages were estimated at $3500 to the 1973 Evans auto, with $200 damage reported to the fence and posts on the Busald farm.

Private Steven A. Carpenter, 21, R. R. 5, was arrested at 1:20 a.m. this morning for being AWOL from Camp Pendleton, California.

He will be released to military authorities.

New Record

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Ten high school students are claiming the world's record for marathon basketball playing after a 45-hour duel which they purposely ended at a 2,534-2,534 tie. There won't be an overtime to determine a winner.

The 10, all of whom will be juniors next year at Orem High School, said they had corresponded with publishers of Guiness' Book of World Records before the match to make sure their efforts would eclipse the world record of 44 hours.

They played continually, with only restroom breaks. There were no substitutions, no officials and virtually no style, as they downed soft drinks on the court and spent much of their time lying on the floor dribbling or methodically taking turns keeping the game going.

Stamps, Coins, Rings Taken From Local Home

A very quiet Friday night was reported by the Rushville City Police, with investigation of a burglary taking place early Friday being the only action listed.

Mrs. John Owens, 1218 North Main Street, reported Friday morning the theft of coins, stamps and jewelry from her home some time June 28.

The report states that Mrs. Owens called the police station Friday morning and advised that several coins and stamps, that were in the kitchen, and two rings, that were in a bedroom, were taken from her home between the hours of 6:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. June 28.

Investigation revealed that the thief or thieves gained entry through a rear door, which was unlocked. It was stated that fingerprints had been lifted from various items at the scene and will be compared to those of a suspect, along with identification from a witness.

Value of the stamps, coins, and rings was estimated at approximately $400. Further investigation of the burglary is being conducted by the Rushville Police Department.

Japan May Be Next On Nixon Agenda

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon may travel to Japan in August, acording to White House aides, and he is also contemplating another European swing this fall.

The President has journeyed to the Middle East and the Soviet Union within the span of a month, despite a nagging attack of phlebitis which caused a potentially dangerous blood clot in his left leg.

The clot has now "fixed" itself to the wall of the vein and there is no danger, according to Nixon's chief physician, Dr. Walter Tkach.

The President sent word to reporters Friday that he was "feeling fine," although his leg still is swollen slightly. To ease the condition, he has been following a regimen of swimming and boating for the past two days.

A weary Nixon arrived here from summit talks with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev Wednesday evening. Since then he has not been seen in public.

Tkach, who tries to check on the President daily, told reporters Thursday that the dangers of traveling while suffering from phlebitis were outlined fully to Nixon before he flew to the Middle East, but Nixon rejected his advice to postpone the trip.

Tkach now says Nixon has a permanent clot but he does not expect any breaking off of the clot into the blood stream. It had been feared that the clot could travel to the heart or lungs, causing serious and possibly fatal complications.

Nixon appears to be determined to keep the spotlight this summer on foreign policy, which he believes is his strong suit in offsetting the impeachment inquiry.

Little is said at the White House about Nixon's own role in mapping strategy to deal with his challenge in the Supreme Court to a federal grand jury's right to name him as an unindicted coconspirator.

Also before the bench is the question of whether Nixon is within his rights to defy a subpoena for 64 Watergate tapes sought by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Flag Pole Bends

It has been pointed out that part of the courthouse renovation could possibly be the straightening of the flag pole on the courthouse lawn. Evidently victim of prevailing strong winds, the pole leans noticeably to the east, and the "bow" seems to be getting bigger with the passing of time.

4 Killed, Many Injured In Fireworks Accidents

By United Press International

Four persons were killed in fireworks accidents during Independence Day celebrations and nearly 200 others suffered fireworks injuries from loss of sight to loss of limbs, the National Fire Protection Association said Friday.

The fire protection groups criticized the Consumer Products Safety Commission for lifting the ban on fireworks it had imposed for June 17. The ban was postponed under pressure from the fireworks industry.

In Anaheim, Calif., a four-month-old child died in a house fire sparked when someone threw fireworks down the mail chute. One youthful celebrator was killed and his companion injured when a home-made pipe bomb exploded prematurely as they prepared to detonate it in a field near the Chicago suburb of Arlington Heights.

An M-80 killed a 34-year-old man at Fackler, Ala., and a 16-year-old boy was killed in a mishap in Stark County, Ohio.

A prankster threw a cherry bomb through the window of a Chicago squadcar. As the patrolman, John Dalesandro, 32, juggled the tiny explosive to get it out of the car, it burst in his right hand. Delesandro lost the first joint of the middle finger.

"What the totals would have been if the ... commission had not lifted its nationwide ban ... can only be surmised," Charles S. Morgan, president of the Fire Protection Association, said.

"In all probability, it would have been lower," he said. "This fourth would have been safer. Lives could have been saved and maiming injuries avoided if the (commission) had shown a little courage and not caved in to the fireworks industry."

TASK FORCE VS. DRUG ABUSE

A task force should be hailed for its results rather than for its intentions. But so destructive is the problem of drug abuse that a high-level task force on it deserves strong support all along — in hopes that its efforts to develop a model program for American cities will avoid pitfalls and come up with a firm basis for action.

The current task force is composed of mayors from 20 cities seeking ways to foster a coordinated attack on the problem by urban leaders. They are wisely considering not only ways of reacting to narcotics offenders but ways of creating positive urban conditions to prevent reliance on drugs as escape from frustration. They no doubt will note recent studies suggesting that improved education in general may have more impact in discouraging drug abuse than classes specifically about drugs. All citizens will wish them well.

Spiritual Pathways—

By Rev. James Tharp

"And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity." (I Cor. 13:13).

I've never met a real Christian who felt that he was as completely filled with love as he ought to be. We can talk in church about love, but it is quite another thing to translate all our ideals into action in everyday life.

Love is the cardinal of all Christian virtues. It isn't just what makes the world go around—it is actually what makes the world. When you take a deep look at what we call love, you soon sense that it is traced to a higher source than our mere humanity. Something so great and deep as this had to have its beginning with god.

Before Jesus Christ came into the world, the world had heard a lot of talk about love. And the Master Himself also talked a great deal about love. But there was a difference — those who listened to Him were able to sense that here was a Person who could do more than talk about love. He could really love. And He did.

Had the Galilean failed in loving people, all His teachings would have fallen to the level of other men. But he loved sinful men so much that He gave His life for their salvation.

Love means forgiveness. This is what it meant for Christ to love. This is what it will mean for us to love. If we cannot forgive, then our hardness is proof of the absence of love.

Without love a neighborhood can be turned into a prison camp. Without love a home can be turned into a hell. Without love lives are withered and blasted and destroyed. Without love churches are mere institutions for the display of human pride and carnality. Without love Satan has the upper hand.

But God is love! Where the Spirit of the Lord is there is love.

Bikes To Have New Standards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In hopes of reducing some of the one million bicycle accidents that occur in the United States each year, the government has announced new safety standards for bikes sold in interstate commerce after Jan. 1, 1975.

The rules were announced Tuesday by the government's Consumer Product Safety Commission. They include strength and performance specifications for the frame, steering system, wheels and brakes.

They require protected edges on metal fenders; coverings for protruding bolts; chain guards for bikes that are not freewheeling; locking devices to secure wheel hubs; handlebar, seat and stem clamps; adequate reflectors, and one more thing —a good set of instructions for putting a new bike together.

The commission said that of the one million bicycle injuries among Americans each year, 419,000 are injured badly enough to have emergency room treatment. It said 17 per cent of the injuries are attributed to mechanical and structural failure of bikes.

Alston Doesn't Want To Injure Hurler

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

Walter Alston says he didn't want to damage Geoff Zahn's arm Friday night —but he obviously isn't worried about Mike Marshall's arm.

Zahn, a 23-year-old lefthander, posted the second major league victory of his career Friday night when he stopped the Montreal Expos on just one hit for seven innings in the second game of a doubleheader.

Although the Dodgers were leading 7-0, Alston lifted Zahn, explaining, "He's young and I need him again soon and I don't want to do any damage to his arm."

Alston then brought in Marshall, who had sat out the opener, which the Dodgers lost 11-6, and Alston apparently didn't want him to get "rusty."

Marshall, 31, stopped the Expos on three hits over the last two innings to wrap up the 7-0 victory. It was his first appearance on the mound in Montreal since he was traded in the off-season and he was booed roundly by the crowd of 23,167.

Willie Crawford hit a pair of two-run homers to lift Montreal to the second game victory. Ernie McAnally was the loser.

In the opener, Barry Foote, Mike Jorgensen and Ken Singleton all homered to pace Montreal to the victory. Al Downing, who went 3 1-3 innings, suffered the loss.

In the other NL games, St. Louis downed Cincinnati, 3-2; New York edged San Francisco, 3-2; Chicago swept Atlanta, 4-1 and 3-2; Houston routed Pittsburgh, 7-1, and Philadelphia downed San Diego, 8-1.

NFL Players Expect NLR To Act

By BARNEY SEIBERT

MIAMI (UPI) — A spokesman for the NFL Players Association says he expects the National Labor Relations Board "to act quickly" concerning the San Diego Chargers' threats to require return of bonuses from rookies who join the player strike.

"We filed an unfair labor practices complaint with the NLRB July 1. We believe this (threat) is illegal. We expect the NLRB to act quickly," Ed Garvey, executive director of the association, told a news conference Friday night.

Garvey, along with running backs Kermit Alexander of the Philadelphia Eagles and Ed Podolak of the Kansas City Chiefs, were here Friday night to meet with Dolphins' players and discuss player picketing assignments when the Miami team opens training camp Sunday at Biscayne College.

Speaking from behind a table decorated with a sticker reading, "No freedom, No football," Garvey, his face sunburned from the San Diego picket line, also said:

—"I think that a number of the coaches in the NFL will ultimately honor those picket lines as well."

—Owners' plans to play exhibition and regular season games with teams of free agents and rookies were "nonsense ... it's not going to happen."

—Should enough players be assembled to play some games, the strikers would picket them and receive help from labor unions which would tie up concessions and other services. "I don't know if they will find anyone to unlock the stadium."

—He expected all or nearly all the Miami Dolphins' veterans to refuse to play in the College All-Star game July 26 at Soldier Field, but "if there is a game, there will be picket lines."

—Strikers would receive no strike benefits from the association, but if they need money they may obtain loans from the association's $260,000 strike fund. If that proves insufficient, the association has promises of loans from several labor unions.

Alexander said players would not end their strike until a contract has been agreed and signed by both sides. He said when the association last agreed on a contract with a handshake and returned to the training camps before the agreement was written and signed, it spent a year in litigation straightening out the terms.

He indicated the Players Association might attempt to organize an NFL coaches association if and when the strike was settled.

A WEEKLY HOOSIER HISTORICAL COLUMN

By Laura Brett and Rev. Joseph Delgatto

Bank robbery seems to be vying with streaking as the latest national passtime, the most sensational bank robbery of late being committed by Patty Hearst and the Symbionese Liberation Army. But their taking from the rich to give to the "poor" is not a new idea. Remember Robin Hood and his merry men?

Nor is this group the first politically motivated one to operate in the United States. During the last century, such a group of young revolutionaries whom historians call the Northwest Conspirators, swept down from exile in Canada to rob the banks at St. Alban's Vermont of $200,000 increased international tension between the already strained relationship governments of the United States and Canada. Canadians were not much fonder of the stiff necked New Englanders than the Southerners were.

Leader of the group was Bennett Young, a former divinity student. He had given up his study of religion to go to war, choosing to fight with the south, though his own state of Kentucky tried to remain neutral. He rode with Morgan on his famous raid across Indiana, was captured and imprisoned first at Camp Chase and then at Camp Douglas. In the early spring of 1864 he escaped and made his way to Canada where he joined other southerners who had dedicated themselves to the overthrow of the U.S. government using any means they could think of.

Young believed that the Yankee nerve spot was his pocketbook. Touch it and he would squeal loudly. Young wanted him to squeal loudly as payment for Yankee treatment of the South. The North was about to get a taste of Sherman's medicine. He chose the bans of St. Alban's as his target for several reasons. The town was about fifteen miles from the border. They could ride in and out quickly with a minimum of danger. The First National Bank, the St. Alban's Bank and the Franklin County Bank were all located on the same street less than half a block apart. On this same street was a hotel where they might stay while they looked the place over, and a livery stable. The stable was important because they could not all ride into town without attracting attention. Some would have to arrive by train and would need horses for the escape.

Young and a man named Hutchinson arrived first and began to look the town over. Under the pretext of romancing a pretty young thing, Young sat in the park with a local belle and talked theology with her while his eyes were taking in things other than her charms. Meanwhile the other men began to arrive two and three at a time and take rooms in scattered hotels.

Promptly at 3:00 p.m. on October 19th, the rebels assembled in the town square, took off their overcoast to reveal their Confederate uniforms, and announced: This city is now in the possession of the Confederate States of America. The townspeople, thinking it was a joke, began to laugh. Their laughter was short lived.

Guns in hand, the rebels entered the three banks and relieved them of their gold. They did not take silver or greenbacks. The stunned citizens were hearded like sheep into the town square, but some escaped and began to fire on the southerers from houses about the square. The raiders then dashed bottles of Greek fire against those buildings, setting them on fire. With bags of gold hanging from their saddle horns, they dashed out of town and headed for the Canadian border.

The irate citizens followed on their heels. Their rage over the stealing of their gold was nothing compared to their anger over the theft of their horses. Hanging was too good for horse thieves! But northern marksmanship was deplorable. Not a raider was scratched by a single bullet.

The robbers broke into small groups in best Hollywood fashion to make pursuit more difficult and succeeded in recrossing the border without any of them being caught. However, Major-General John A Dix, who was in charge of the Army's Department of the Cast, gave order to soldiers to ignore the national boundries. They were to cross into Canada, apprehend the men, and bring them back for trial. This was ill advised. Canada resented this invasion of her territory.

Though Young and several others had been captured by the Americans, the Canadians relieved them of their prisoners and lodged them in Canadian jails pending a hearing. The U.S. was forced to sue for extraditiona. A great legal battle began. The rebels defended their actions. They were acting under orders from their government, soldiers performing their duty. The Canadians were sympathetic. On December 15, the presiding magistrate at Montreal released the prisoners claiming their act was one to reciprocity and not done for personal gain therefore he had no jurisdiction in the case.

The United States set up such a howl of protest that the Canadians again arrested Young. This time he was charged with violating the neutrality of Canada. A fine of $10,000 and imprisonment was the penalty if he should be convicted. After a delay of several weeks, the Canadians released Young on the grounds that no reliable witnesses had been brought forth to present a case against him.

Young then took up the study of law, and after the war was given a Presidential pardon which allowed him to return to the United States to live. He became the President of the Monon Railroad and President of the Kentucky and Indiana Bridge Company . He also practiced law, became a famous orator, and wrote books about the Civil War, but he never wrote one line about his own part in the war. He left that task to others.

In May of 1904 he was invited to St. Albans to take part in a reinactment of his raid, but such a storm of protest arose, he declined the honor. He was elected the head of the Confederate Veteran's Association and acting in that capacity dedicated the Confederate Monument at Arlington. He died in 1917 and was carried to rest to the muffled beating of the drum followed by a horse with an empty saddle, boots stuck backward in the stirrups.

Reserve Center Here To Be Expanded

OMAHA—Baystone Construction, Inc. of Muncie, has been awarded a contract for expansion of the U.S. Army Reserve Center at Rushville, In.

The award of the $723,557 contract was made by the Corps of Engineers in Omaha. Colonel Russell A. Glenn, Omaha District Engineer, said Baystone's bid was the lowest of two submitted.

The 9,200 sq. ft. brick addition to the Reserve Center Building will include a completely equipped kitchen, an indoor rifle range and 75 lockers.

One bay consisting of 1,269 sq. ft. will be added to the vehicle maintenance shop. Exterior work covers paving, sidewalks, a grease rack and wash platform, chain link fencing and landscaping.

The contractor will commence work within 10 days after receiving the notice to proceed from the Corps of Engineers. Present plans call for completion of the work in approximately one year.

Cambridge City's Canal Days Will Feature Arts And Crafts

Only in its second year, Cambridge City's Whitewater Canal Days celebration is already one of the most popular Arts and Crafts Festivals in East-Central Indiana. In last year's inaugural, an estimated 5,000 persons attended the two-day affair.

Indications are that this year's celebrations set for Saturday and Sunday, (Sept. 21-22) will be even bigger, judging from the huge number of requests for "flea market" display space on either side of the historic National Road (U.S. 40). Nestled in the heart of scenic Whitewater Valley, the Cambridge City business district is separated by the National Road.

Flea markets began last year at the extreme eastern edge of the town and stretched westward nearly the full distance of the community, almost one half mile. This year's event will accomodate even more display booths by blocking off at least one side street so that the miniature businesses may be set up both north and south from the National Road.

As with all undertakings of such magnitude, several events remain tentative. However, the always popular Whitewater Canal Days Queen Contest will be a highlight of the weekend activities. Skydivers from a Winchester Skydiving Club will again make several jumps above Cambridge City with scheduled landings in Creitz Park. Also in Creitz Park will be Kiddie Rides, ball games and eating places.

Along the midway on the National Road, display booths of antiques, uniques and maybe even a little junk may be found both east and west on either side of the highway.

Local sororities, fraternal organizations and civic groups all participate in a variety of ways in the annual affair. Participation ranges from sponsorship of queen candidates to acquisition of convertibles for the well-planned parade.

And the parade, a Sunday feature, received high praise last year. One of the several units last year was Richmond High School's famous marching band, making one of their last personal appearances prior to departing for California and the Rose Bowl parade.

Plan now to tour historic Cambridge City (make a two-day trip out of it) during Whitewater Canal Days. Persons interested in reserving display booth space may do so by calling the Cambridge City Chamber of Commerce or committee co-chairwomen, Mary Malony or Marion Raisbeck, at 476-2051.

Rep.: July 6.

The HOOSIER DAY

By Donald White

The hottest day of the season was picked to start replacement of the repaired stained glass panels of the inner dome in the State House.

Any school child can tell you that hot air rises, which would make the temperature in the space between the inner and outer gilted cement dome almost unbearable. Workmen were taking their time in replacing the nine panels, removed to replace fallen glass. As the first was slid into position, it appeared a close match in color had been impossible.

Meanwhile, a small crowd of office workers gathered around the cordoned off inner circle, necks strained to watch progress some 234 feet above the hard marble floor accomplished by shadowy workers.

The dome within a dome is made of leaded stained glass panels of varying sizes. Early in June, small pieces of glass fell to the floor sounding like someone throwing pennies. Small slivers of broken glass proved the skylight really was falling. Traffic was banned while a check was made, and reopened after nine large panels were removed. Each is set into four-inch steel girders, which workers used as walkways during the replacement process.

Back on May 22, I reported the state was purchasing land around the State complex, including The Mart discount store and Trailways bus terminal. The column concluded that the State Office Building Commission, armed with new legislative authority to purchase land without a specific use in mind, was rushing to exercise the power with no "projected pattern." It proposed some long range planning should be done before further purchases.

Happily, the Commission voted to do just that, and will draw up long range plans before proceeding with further purchases. A suit to condemn the full block area between the State House and new Convention-Civic Center has been dropped, with future of the land in considerable doubt. The firm making the successful bid for the land had as a part of the acceptance, construction of a new hotel.

Faced with financial and legal problems, future of the site is in doubt. State planners express concern over possibility of a high rise building cutting off the view from the front of the State Capitol.

Meanwhile, progress on renovation of the elevators in the Capitol is moving with the same speed as the conveyances. The last General Assembly appropriated funds and left instructions for them to be replaced prior to the next session. Antiquated, slow and unreliable, the elevators were the scene of an unsolved rape.

Commissioner of Administration Raymond Sanders, himself a former legislator, intended that the work be done during the slack summer months. Shortage of parts will delay the work, which might not get underway until after the 1975 session. The project has been delayed for so many years, maybe another one will not make any difference.

Target Date for occupancy of the new Governor's mansion keeps being moved ahead, much like the elevator replacement. New estimate is near Christmas, with Thanksgiving already very doubtful. All contracts for the extensive renovation have been awarded, with electricians already on the job.

The House Of Curtis Was Built On Customer Service

Since a very small beginning in a Pure Oil Service Station on West Second Street in 1946, Harold and Dudley Curtis have emphasized that to stay in business and grow, the most important aspect is to give service. That is why the Curtis complex southeast of Rushville on highway 52 proudly bears the motto "The House of Service."

From 3rd and Buena Vista to the corner of 2nd and Harrison, then 3rd and Sexton, later to 222 North Morgan, and finally to their present location on highway 52, Curtis Brothers have expanded the operation there at least on five occasions as the business grew.

Featuring for many years a complete line of RCA electronics and Whirlpool appliances, Curtis Brothers is famous for the good service they give with nine service men and six radio dispatched service trucks. "We have one of the most modern service departments in Indiana," says Lowell (Toad) Redden, who has been service manager for Curtis Brothers since 1948.

In addition to electronics and appliances, a complete line of home furnishings and floor covering can be found at Curtis Brothers, featuring such name brands as International, Karpen, Gans, Clayton, Marcus, Berne, Berline, Futorian, Stratolounger, Collins, Pontiac Riverside, Tell City, American of Martinsville, Kimball, Sumter, and Dolly Madison.

Expert installation of carpeting includes Mohawk, Monarch, Trend Mills.

Harold and Dudley Curtis are owners of the business; sales people include Kim Curtis, Tim Fuller, Chuck Fahrner, and Steve Solimine. Vi Wilson is bookkeeper, Martha Jones is housekeeper and deliveries are made by Warren Daugherty, Mike Boyer, and Phillip Barnard. Assisting Redden in the service department are Earl Moore, Bob Sheppard, Ed Smiley, Terry Dishinger, and Bill Bailey.

Joe's Distributing — A Farmers' Store For A Farm Community

In June, 1962, Joe Sramek came to the community and opened a new concept in retailing—"a farmer's store for a farming community"— where you can "buy it like wholesale!" He called the business "Joe's Distributing."

Famous for his Duralon tires, for trucks, autos, tractors, wagons, implements, Joe offers also most anything a farmer needs, including reliable Durastart batteries. A few of the many items at low prices are hydraulic hoses, paints, hand and power tools, tillage equipment, cultivator shovels, rolling cultivator shields, work shoes, boots, pig feeders, water tanks, oil filters, and Champion spark plugs.

Ordinarily Joe's is headquarters for baling twine and wire and fence, but due to shortage, these items are out of stock. A complete line of animal health needs by Pfizer, Kendal, and Anchor, may be found at Joe's.

COMPARE/ SAVE!

Helping Joe crew the place are full time employes—Don Wall, Sr., and Mel Wilson. The place is open 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily, and until 9 p.m. on Fridays.

Frantz Features Vibrograph B200 Watch Timing Machine

With a beginning on East Third Street, J.M. Frantz has operated his jewelry store at 216 North Main Street since 1961. After graduating from Bradley University School of Horology (watch making) in 1951, Mr. Frantz was employed as watchmaker at Arnold's Jewelry Store in New Castle before coming to Rushville.

Featuring Wickham hand crafted clocks and Accutron watches, Frantz Jewelry Store also stocks several brand names such as Keepsake diamonds, Orange Blossom, Bulova, Seiko, Wyler, Hamilton, Speidel, and Buxton leather goods.

Mr. and Mrs. Frantz also offer expert watch and jewelry repair, with customer satisfaction the primary aim. "We use the most advance and up-to-date ultrasonic cleaning maching and a Vibrograph B200 timing machine," stated Mr. Frantz.

The store is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and until noon Wednesday, closed Sundays of course.

The Frantz family includes sons, Bob, a junior in high school, and Bill, who serves in the U.S. Navy on the Nuclear Submarine Haddo.
